章节摘录

Around the world, people have different ideas about what good manners are. When you go to restaurants in different parts of the world, it's important to know the right and wrong things to do. For example, in China it's OK to make noises in a restaurant. In fact, if a restaurant isn't noisy and lively, you may think there's something wrong with it. However, in many western countries, restaurants are quiet places. If a table is too loud, other people who are eating there might even complain to the owner of the restaurant. Paying the bill is also different from country to country. In China, one person usually pays for everybody. In western countries, one person pays if he or she is entertaining clients. But when friends eat together, they usually share the cost.
