章节摘录

Have you ever felt so anxious during an examination that you suffer from what is known as test anxiety? For a number of years, Dr. Trimble helped many students learn how to perform better during exams and to bring up their grades. Some of these students began holding workshops on overcoming test anxiety. For many students, just being in a workshop with other sufferers made them feel better. They realized that they were not the only ones who had done poorly on tests because of tension. In the workshops, students are taught that anxiety is normal. You just have to prevent it from getting the better of you. The first step is to learn to relax, which will help relieve tension. If you are so calm, you don't care how you do on an examination and you can do well. As a student you must know that if you begin to study a day or two before the examination, you can't learn it all. Instead, concentrate on what you can do and try to think what questions are likely to be asked and what you can do in the time left for studying. On essay questions, instead of starting right away, take a few minutes to organize your thoughts, make a brief outline, and then start off with a summary sentence. Keep working steadily, and even when time starts to run out, don't speed up.
